ChatGPT: a Natural Language Chatbot

ChatGPT is getting a lot of buzz in the tech world. The folks at OpenAI created this powerful natural language chatbot (robot) that can answer just about any question, crack a joke, write a resume, do your grandkid's math homework (or write a term paper), compose original music, debug computer code, or give relationship advice. It even passed an MBA exam given by a Wharton professor. Naturally, teachers are worried about students cheating on assignments by using ChatGPT. Software has already been developed to detect if content was created with ChatGPT, but experts in artificial intelligence predict that the technology will quickly advance to the point where it will be undetectable.
